Under and by virtue of a deed of Frunt dated to be seen and provided and the president of the season of the the time he deemed fittest, the clergyman got through first, and finally the others, one by one, finished, except a cracked falsetto that had got lost, and was vainly looking for a good place to stop. Disregarding the latter as being beneath notice, the minister pronounced the benediction, and the congregation walked out in silence. A meeting of the trustess has been called to decide whether the organist shall be

Tunna is much pertinence in the following paragraph which we take from a New York per: "Once more we draw attention to the trageous extent to which the practice of clamoring for 'encores' is carried here. Audiencies oring for encores is carried ners. Antiences are probably in many instances little sware what disgust such inconsiderate proofs of their admiration elicit among accomplished actors and singers. An encore is often a positive cruelty, inasmuch as the execution of a diffi-cult song, requiring the violent exercise of all the muscles of the throat, cannot be repeated immediately without serious discomfort. It is something to sing several songs each afternoon at intervals of twenty minutes, and quite an other to be called upon to repeat them in rapid succession. The same, in a lesser degree, applies to instrumental soloists. Who has not seen an unfortunate performer on a cornet straining himself to please a thoughtless crowd, who fancy that they are paying him a gratefu compliment, until you fear that he will break
